COMMISSION TO REPLACE HUERTADictator Will Abdicate in Favor of Board, Is Report.

HIS ENVOY MEETS LIND

Six Hours' Conference in Vera Cruz
and Cabinet Meeting in Mexico
City Lead Color to Rumor.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.
Mexico City, Jan. 19.—A report, emanating from apparently reliable authority, is current tonight to the effect that Huerta has decided to abdicate in favor of a commission of leading men. A call for an extraordinary meeting of the cabinet, issued late tonight, gives support to the rumor, although no information regarding the purpose of the meeting has been obtainable. At a late hour the meeting was still in session.

Rumors that Huerta was about to abdicate have been current for some days. Recent federal reverses in various quarters are said to have convinced him that further resistance was useless.

A troop train from this city was derailed at Tres Marias, on the road to Cuernavaca, at 6:30 o'clock this morning. Reports say that nineteen were killed. Fighting was resumed at Matatlan today, the federalists being helped by the gunboats in the harbor. The casualties are reported to have been numerous on both sides, but no details have been received.

Vera Cruz, Jan. 19.—Don Flores Magón, former minister of the interior, left John Lind's office this afternoon after a six-hour conference. Huerta's representative and Mr. Lind expect to meet again tomorrow.

There is little doubt here that Senor Magón is dickering with President Wilson's envoy for terms as Huerta's representative, although Mr. Lind denies this.

Marfa, Tex., Jan. 19.—Nearly all of the 600 refugees from Ojinaga have completed the 67-mile march from Presidio to Marfa. The first train load left late tonight for Fort Bliss. They will arrive there about daylight tomorrow.

COSTING U. S. $2,500 A DAY
— TO FEED MEXICAN REFUGEES

It is costing the United States $2,500 a day to feed the Mexican federal soldiers and the women and children who fled to the United States after the capture of Ojinaga by the constitutionalists.

Already the War Department has spent $100,000 in caring for Mexicans who have sought asylum in the United States, exclusive of what it has cost to feed and shelter the refugees from Ojinaga.

It has been decided that the expenditures shall be entered as a claim against Mexico from the government of the United States. Accordingly, the War Department yesterday transmitted to Secretary Bryan a statement of the $100,000 expenditure, and other statements will follow as the expenditures continue. The State Department will seek appropriation from Congress to pay these bills, and will reimburse the War Department for its expenditures. The account will then be carried as a charge against the Mexican government, to be presented whenever the settlement of claims is undertaken.

There is now every indication that one of the most important phases of the Mexican situation is as yet untouched. Claims mounting up to the hundreds of millions are being received from the present prospect is that the necessary adjustment of these claims, which will come some time in the future, will present to the interested governments the biggest task of the kind since the Boxer uprising. There is already grave doubt of Mexico ever being able to pay the huge bills which will be presented against her revenues. These questions, however, have not yet been taken up by the administration.

In connection with the movement of the federal garrison at Ojinaga to the United States, it is known today that the hundred of horses and mules which they brought with them will be sold by the United States. The Mexican consul at San Antonio has asked that the mules be sold for the purpose of being turned over to him. It has not been decided, however, whether this will be done, or whether the money will be turned into the United States Treasury as partial reimbursement for the expense to which the United States had been put.

VILLA MAKES FIRST MOVE
IN MEXICO CITY CAMPAIGN

Chihuahua City, Mexico, Jan. 19.—The campaign against Torreon began today with the dispatch of 3,000 men to the south by order of Villa. More troops will follow in the next few days. Gen. Ortega, who led the attack on Ojinaga, has been given command of the movement of troops.

Villa himself will take command of the attack on Torreon. He will not start south for a week or ten days yet.

FEDERAL AGENT PUTS
QUICK END TO STRIKE

Delaware and Hudson Adjusts Differences with Employees After
All-day Tie-up of Road.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Seven hours after the arrival in Albany of George W. Hanger, of the Federal board of mediation and conciliation, the strike of the D. & H. employees was settled, and two hours from the time the agreement was signed nearly all of the men were back at work.

The company reinstated the two men—A. F. Slade, an engineer, and James Lynch, a conductor—who were dismissed and on whose account the strike was called Sunday night.

M. C. Carey, international vice president of the Order of Railway Conductors, gives all credit for the settlement to Mr. Hanger.

Although the two men were reinstated and will get their old positions back, yet some of the minor differences that cropped out during the conferences held for the past ten days were not concluded. These will go to arbitration tomorrow morning, but there is every reason to believe that all will be adjusted amicably.

DREYFUS' DEFENDER DEAD.

Gen. Georges Picquart Was French
National Hero.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.
Paris, Jan. 19.—Gen. Georges Picquart, who after his banishment for championing the cause of Capt. Dreyfus was restored to rank and became French Minister of War, died today from injuries sustained in a fall from his horse. At the time of his death Gen. Picquart was commander of the district of Amiens.

The life of Gen. Picquart furnished one of the most dramatic careers in the French military service. He was the first soldier to come to the defense of Dreyfus, for which he was disgraced. However, his courageous behavior won the hearts of the populace and when he was recalled from his exile he became a national hero.

On account of his connection with the Dreyfus case Picquart had to fight several duels.

MRS. BLAKE WINS SEPARATION.

Private Agreement Said to Guarantee
Her $10,000 Alimony.

Special to The Washington Herald.
New York, Jan. 19.—A decree of separation, based on the recommendations of a referee, today was granted in the Supreme Court to Mrs. Catherine Ketcham Blake, wife of Dr. Joseph A. Blake, a private agreement regarding the alimony, which is said to be about $10,000 a year, was arranged by the parties to the suit.

Mrs. Blake alleged that her husband had abandoned her and had refused to support her. The testimony showed that they quarreled when Mrs. Blake refused to allow her son to visit a certain family for the week-end with Dr. Blake. At that time the doctor told her that he intended to separate from her.

MUTILATED BODY
PUT IN A BARRELCapt. James E. Marks, of Oyster Schooner, Slain
by Negroes.

SHIP PICKED UP ADRIFT

Two Murderers Left Vessel in Motorboat After Robbing Master.

According to information received in Washington late last night, the dismembered body of Capt. James E. Marks, of the oyster schooner Mary Inez, was discovered yesterday drifting in a barrel in the Potomac River at Sanford, Va.

Some weeks ago Capt. Marks went to Baltimore and got two negroes to act as his crew on board the "Mary Inez." The schooner sailed for Norfolk and then made three trips between Norfolk and Chesapeake. The schooner was found adrift, Capt. Marks missing and the two negroes were gone. They went ashore in a motor-boat, landing, it is said, near Old Point Comfort. The schooner was picked up adrift at Gwynn's Point, Baltimore, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort took up the case, but could find no clue that would lead to the arrest of the murderers.

Capt. Marks was popularly known in Washington. For years he operated the "Mary Inez" between the Rappahannock watermen fields to Washington. Capt. Lloyd Water, of the schooner L. C. Smith, was a great friend of Capt. Marks and yesterday notified friends of the murdered man in this city.

The exact details of the murder perhaps never will be known, unless the two negroes who are said to have killed him are captured. It is believed he was killed at least a week or ten days ago and that his body has been floating about ever since.

Scores of detectives from cities along the Virginia and North Carolina coast have joined in the hunt for the two murderers. All effort will be made by the United States marshal at Norfolk to get the past of the two men in hopes of getting a clue that will lead to their arrest.

MADE $10,000 IN TIP SCHOOL.

C. A. Lomas Gave Mail Course for Pullman Porters.

Special to The Washington Herald.
New York, Jan. 19.—Theory and practice of what-brooming and the art of bed-making whetted Charles A. Lomas over $10,000 in six months, according to postoffice inspectors, who brought him before Federal court today on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Lomas conceived the idea of teaching colored men to be Pullman porters by mail. Students sent in their money from all over the country.

The postoffice men say he promised to get them positions and failed to make good. The course included "what-brooming," the art of bed-making. The human smile and how to use it.

HONEYMOONER, 75, ON FOURTH MARITAL TRIP

"When Lord Takes One, I Take Another," J. Dixon Avery of Pittsburgh Explains.

WIFE APPROVES OF SENTIMENT

"When the Lord takes one, I take another," explained J. Dixon Avery, of Pittsburgh, seventy-five years old, who embarked yesterday on his fourth marital voyage. His latest partner, Mrs. Marie R. Strief, fifty-six years old, also of Pittsburgh, nodded in approval of her husband's words.

"I feel as young and spry as a boy of fourteen and what's more, I won't promise that this is the last time either," he said, slightly winking at his wife, who asked last night if he didn't think that Cupid, with the aid of Father Time, had not played him a rather questionable trick. Mrs. Avery would say nothing except that she was very happy and expected to remain so.

Mr. Avery, who is a dealer in provisions, arrived in Washington Sunday and made arrangements with the Rev. L. E. Perdue to perform the marriage. They were married late yesterday afternoon in the First Congregational Church. They are stopping at the Willard.

GIRLS RESCUE FIVE SKATERS.

Form a "Human Chain" When Ice
Breaks Under Quinlet.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Tarrytown, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Three men and two women were saved from death in the icy waters of Woodlawn Lake, near Ardley, by a human chain formed by comrade skaters, two "links" being made by girls.

The party was skating along merrily when there were several piercing screams and five disappeared through a hole in the ice.

At that moment the rescuers joined hands and stretched out in the ice. The "hook end" of the rope was made fast in the ice by the point of a skate runner, which prevented any of the links from slipping into the opening. Then a man was let down into the hole. Word was given to haul away, and he reappeared on the surface clapping the hands of an exhausted woman. Five times the chain was let down into the opening and five times appeared again with a victim.

It is expected that the final meeting and signing of the convention will be held tomorrow.

The American delegates are arranging to leave on board the Olympic Wednesday.

INQUIRY INTO THE ACTS
OF JUDGE SPEER OPENSCongressional Committee Hears of Celebrated Jemison Case,
Ten Years Old.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Macon, Ga., Jan. 19.—The special Congressional committee appointed to inquire into the conduct in office of Federal Judge Emory Speer, of the Southern District of Georgia, began its hearing today.

Curtis Nottingham, postmaster and former city recorder, was the first witness, and testified as to the celebrated Henry Jemison case, which arose ten years ago.

Jemison, a negro, and employee of Judge Speer, was arrested by the police and convicted in the Recorder's Court for a disorderly offense. He was sent to the chain gang, but was released upon a writ of habeas corpus granted by Judge Speer.

Mr. Nottingham testified that the Supreme Court reversed Judge Speer in the Jemison case, but that the judge refused to make the mandate of the Supreme Court the order of his court until eight months after the Supreme Court decision.

Officers Repel Suffragettes Who Try to Free Her.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.
London, Jan. 19.—A heavy police guard was placed around Knight's Bridge Hall today where the weekly meeting of the militant suffragettes was held.

One of the leaders, Mary Ansell, was arrested when she tried to enter the hall under the "cat and mouse" law. Her comrades tried to free her, but were repelled.

MINISTER CONFESSES
TO JEKYL-HYDE LIFERev. J. W. Foster Divided Time Between Wife and Family and Another Woman.

HE PUTS BLAME ON SPOUSE

Special to The Washington Herald.
Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 19.—An amazing story of the double life of Rev. J. W. Foster, forty-eight years old, a Baptist minister, was revealed today by the minister, who told how he divided his time between his household, consisting of a wife and seven children, and posing as "J. W. Deane," husband of Mrs. Maude Deane, in another part of the city.

Foster and Mrs. Deane, who is twenty-two years old, were arrested and released on bonds of $200 each.

Foster has been engaged in the real estate business since coming to Atlanta two years ago, although he preached occasionally. Mrs. Deane told the police that she was separated from her husband.

"I shall stay by him forever," she said, speaking of Foster. "If they send him to jail, I want to be imprisoned also. If he must suffer for our wrong-doing I want to suffer with him."

"Rev. J. W. Foster" was the name by which he was known at 388 Gordon street, West End, where he lived part of the time with his wife and seven children, the two eldest of whom are married.

The former minister made a complete confession, according to the police. He placed all of the blame for his plight on his wife.

"If she had not humiliated me and nagged me and overwhelmed me with suspicion, I never would have left the ministry," declared Foster.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.
London, Jan. 19.—Capt. Francis Inch, who commanded the ill-fated Volturom, has been given the command of the new steamer Principello, which is to be the flagship of the Uranium Line.

The appointment is intended as a recognition of the heroism and high quality of seamanship displayed by Capt. Inch when the Volturom was destroyed by fire at sea.

SENATE AGREES
UPON WILLIAMSNomination as Comptroller of the Currency Is Confirmed.

MR. WILSON IS NOTIFIED

Reed Makes Public Stark-Albertson
Correspondence Brought Out
by Milton E. Ailes.

John Skelton Williams was confirmed as Comptroller of the Currency by the Senate yesterday afternoon and the President was immediately notified so that he might issue a commission without delay.

The usual course of allowing the notification to remain in abeyance until two executive sessions intervened, so that a motion to reconsider may be made, was not observed in this case.

Senator Bratton was the principal speaker in the executive session, which lasted for more than an hour. He condemned the Williams nomination unsparingly and Senator Smith, of Michigan, added a word of criticism.

The nomination was defended by Senator Reed and Senator Martin. Mr. Reed said a letter from Charles Stark, national bank examiner for the district of New York, whose name was introduced into the hearing a few days ago by Milton E. Ailes, vice president of the Riggs National Bank of this city, who stated that he had been informed by an officer of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank of New York that Examiner Stark had called on him and told him to get rid of any Seaboard Air Line stock that the bank might be carrying as collateral.

In his letter Stark incriminated one Walter F. Albertson, vice president of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank.

Mr. Stark denied that he had so advised any officer of the Mechanics National Bank and said that he had written a letter dated January 17, following:

"My Dear Mr. Stark: My attention has been directed to the alleged testimony of Mr. M. E. Ailes before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency affecting Seaboard Air Line securities, and I would like very much in this formal way to deny you are responsible for the statement."

"I am quite certain I am the only vice president of our institution known to Mr. Ailes, and as I have not seen him to talk to for several years I could not have made the remark attributed to me. I am very glad to make this denial."

In concluding his letter, Mr. Stark wrote:

"In conclusion, let me suggest that Mr. Ailes obviously has confused a certain situation which arose prior to Mr. Williams' becoming Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, with something which never occurred, but which, for reasons which I can only surmise, he permitted himself to develop into an act of violence. In March, 1913, I had questioned the validity of the bank's carrying as loans the certificates of the Unincorporated Association, organized under the laws of the State of Massachusetts, representing shares of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, on the ground that those certificates did not represent loans to the association, but were actual purchases of stock of the railway, and purchases of stock by national banks are contrary to the national bank act. These share certificates carried no financial responsibility to the shareholders of the association."

Following the conference, the Senate voted to remove the seal of secrecy from the hearings before the Banking and Currency Committee and consequently printed copies of the hearings were given out after the recess session had adjourned.

President Wilson soon will be called upon to nominate a First Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, to succeed Mr. Williams. Interest attaches to the character of the man to be appointed to this position, because the currency division of the Treasury Department, as constituted by the Glass-Owen law, is within that part of the Department which the Assistant Secretary in charge of finance exercises supervision.

Three men are named as a possible successor to Mr. Williams. These are Assistant Secretary Hamilton, now in charge of customs; Assistant Secretary Newton, in charge of the Federal building and Revenue-cutter Service; Public Health Service, and Life-saving Service, and George W. Norris, superintendent of wharves, docks, and ferries at Philadelphia. Mr. Norris' appointment is said to have been urged by Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania.

KILL FOUR IN PRISON BREAKThree Convicts Then Themselves Are Shot to Death
by Posse.

USE WOMAN AS A SHIELD

Former Representative Thomas, Uncle of Washington Woman, One of the Victims.

Special to The Washington Herald.
McAlester, Okla., Jan. 19.—Three prisoners, after overpowering their guards and taking the latter's revolvers, shot their way out of the State penitentiary here today, killing four persons and wounding three others before they were rounded up by a posse and themselves killed.

The dead:
Former Representative John R. Thomas, a Muskogee attorney.
P. C. Oates, deputy warden.
P. C. Godfrey, guard.
H. H. DeCover, Bertillon man.
Ghina Reed, Tom Lane, and Charles Kuntis, prisoners.

The wounded:
J. W. Martin, turnkey, shot in the cheek.
C. B. Woods, guard, shot in the arm.
Miss Mary Foster, stenographer, shot in the leg.

The convicts, after taking the revolvers from their two guards, marched the latter into the prison office where Thomas and three prison officials were seated. Deputy Oates jumped to his feet and started firing, but his shots all went wild as he was afraid of hitting the guards, who were being used as shields by the prisoners. The convicts killed Oates, Godfrey and DeCover, and then forced Miss Foster to accompany them to Thomas' buggy, which was standing outside.

Placing her in the vehicle, to be used as a shield, they made a dash for liberty. Miss Foster, suffering from her wound, fainted in the buggy. The alarm spread quickly, and a posse soon was in pursuit. They overtook the convicts less than half a mile from the penitentiary, but were afraid to shoot, for fear of hitting Miss Foster, who was being held up as a shield by the prisoners. A sudden lurch of the buggy, however, threw her to the roadway, and members of the posse then closed in and shot the convicts to death.

Leaves for Funeral.

Mrs. Samuel A. Kimberly, wife of the manager of the American Ice Company, and niece of former Representative John R. Thomas, who was killed by an escaping convict in Oklahoma, last night received word of his death, and left late in the evening to attend the funeral.

Judge Thomas, although a native of Illinois, was a prominent figure in the last days of the Indian territory, and had a national reputation because of his remarkable work for the development of the great Southwest.

Judge Thomas was well known in Washington more than two decades ago, having served in Congress from 1893 to 1899, being elected from Illinois, his native State to the forty-sixth, and the four succeeding Congresses. He was born in Mount Vernon, Jefferson County, Ill., October 11, 1846. He attended the common schools and Hunter College Institute at Princeton, Ind. He served in the Union Army during the civil war, and rose from the ranks of private to that of captain of Company D, 12th Indiana Infantry. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in Illinois in 1869.

He was city attorney of Metropolis, Ill., from 1869 to 1873, and served as State attorney from 1873 to 1874. Mr. Thomas was appointed United States judge in the Indian Territory June 30, 1867, and served to June 28, 1868. He then was elected a member of Congress from the territory under the Sequoyah constitution in 1866. Judge Thomas was nominated for the Supreme Court bench by the first Republican State Convention of Oklahoma, but declined the nomination. He was a member of the Oklahoma State Code Commission from 1898 to 1910. At the end of his term he resumed the practice of law in Muskogee.
